

It's no surprise that government employees want to communicate as easily with their colleagues as they do with everyone else – and turn to existing text messaging options like iMessage to do so. But such mass-market messaging platforms are not always encrypted, do not archive conversations as required by state and local regulations, and may leave government entities highly vulnerable to costly lawsuits and hackers.

Encrypted Information Exchange provides government employees not only with end-to-end encryption but also a full, unalterable and disclosable archive of all text conversations, so you will know your messages are:

ALWAYS SECURE,
ALWAYS TRANSPARENT, AND ALWAYS RECORDED.

Seamlessly communicate on an encrypted platform that creates an archived record of all text conversations.

EIE Legal is an encrypted messaging app specifically designed to meet the needs of government entities and ease compliance with FOIA, Open Meetings Act or Sunshine regulations. EIE Legal provides complete privacy and gives users an efficient, encrypted means of communication with staff and colleagues. And, because the app functions just like the texting and email platforms users are already familiar with, transitioning to EIE Legal is quick and seamless.

As governments contend with the challenges of keeping information safe from hackers, they must simultaneously comply with state and local transparency laws that require them to make records of communications available to the public. Those messaging apps that don't create an archived record of conversations create more work when responding to public-records requests and leave government entities vulnerable to complaints and lawsuits. Public servants need to find a safe, efficient mode of communication that protects their conversations from bad actors but also allows them to produce documents in compliance with the Freedom of Information Act when necessary.

Protect Your Community with “Encrypted Transparency”™

In order to take every step possible to protect your communications, choose a messaging platform that has end-to-end encryption and archiving technology. EIE Legal allows users to print or save copies off archived records. The difference with our app is the “encrypted transparency.”™
